CHRISTMAS TREE NEEDLE MAY LOSE LAD'S SIGHT

COLUMBUS, Jan. 4.—His Christmas tree which afforded so much pleasure over the holidays for two-year-old Edwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Lemley, today may have been the cause of the boy losing the sight of his left eye. A needle from his discarded Christmas tree pierced his eye and today he lies in a hospital here awaiting decision by doctors what course they may take, if any, to save the lad's sight.

ENDED COLD BEFORE PNEUMONIA SET IN

Relief Began Instantly When Doctor Advised Home Use of Pleasant Homeopathic Method

By taking the timely advice of his doctor, E. H. Harding, like numbers of people here, has found that it is not necessary to go thru the needless misery of a cold. Nor is there any necessity for needless fear if the right steps are taken to end a cold quickly before danger sets in.

Mr. Harding contracted a severe cold which nothing seemed to relieve. Examination showed that his nose tubes were badly congested; his throat was inflamed and the cold was rapidly spreading. Fearing pneumonia then he called a doctor who gave him double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral. In a few minutes this hospital certified medicine brought welcome relief. Next day he was sufficiently relieved to get up, and in another day or so congestion cleared up and he was back at work as well as ever.

all certified by attending physician.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person tomorrow. Indorsed by all druggists.

RAIDS GO ON

Greater Whaler's Squad Enter 69
Flares, Take 100 Men

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Police Commissioner Whaler's campaign to wipe out all of New York's speakeasies was pushed briskly last night and early today when police raided 69 places throughout the city, arresting 100 proprietors or bartenders and confiscating a considerable quantity of liquor. Four self-armed night clubs were among the places raided.

Some of the dives where wood alcohol was alleged to have been sold were wrecked by the new gun squad, composed of the toughest men on the force.

MAN DIES AFTER BEING HIT BY THREE CARS

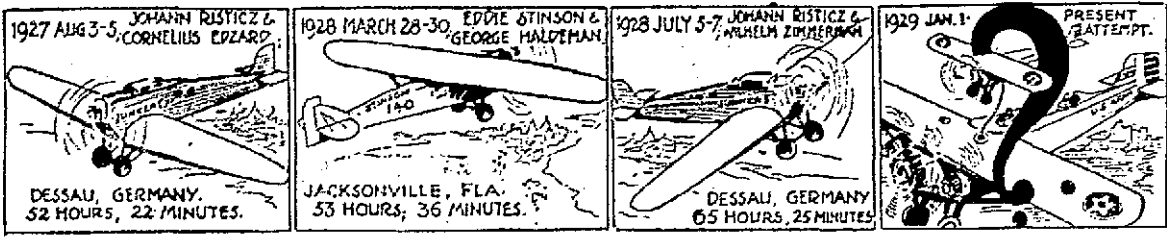

COLUMBUS, Jan. 4.—Otto Howe, 38, is dead today, the first traffic victim here in 1929. He was struck by three automobiles Wednesday night and died last night in a hospital from injuries including a fractured skull, four fractures of the right leg, a broken arm and several rib fractures.

According to witnesses he was struck by a black-top motorist, which car threw him into the path of another driven by A. N. Weinberg, which in turn knocked him in front of an auto driven by Floyd St. Michael. How served eight years in the navy. Funeral services will be conducted Monday at the late home. His widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

Their Nerve vs. Machinery: Which is Stronger

These men not only are breaking endurance flight records with the army plane, Question Mark, but they also seek to determine which must crack first—men or machinery. Left to right, Major Carl Spatz, in charge of the plane; Captain Ira Eaker and Lieut. E. Quesada, copilots; Lieut. L. A. Woodruff and Lieut. A. C. Strickland, who operate the air refueling station.

Endurance records recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale have changed hands three times since Clément Chartier and Bert Acosta set their mark in April, 1927. Here are the official records:

1927—April 15, Chamberlin and Acosta; Curtiss Field: 51 hours, 11 minutes.

1927—August 3-5, Johann Ritzler and Cornelius Eldard; Dessau, Germany: 52 hours 22 minutes.

1928—March 28-30, Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman; Jacksonville, Fla.: 53 hours 36 minutes.

1928—July 5-7, Johann Ritzler and Wilhelm Zimmerman; Dessau, Germany: 65 hours 25 minutes.

BANDIT KILLED IN GUNFIRE OF POSSE

Another Held While Third Is Trapped in Wood After Bank Robbery

MEXICO, Mo., Jan. 3.—A bandit dead, another is missing and the third trapped in a wood here, authorities today believed they would make a perfect posse in soon.

The bandits escaped up $25,000 in cash and Liberty Bonds and left in an automobile. A posse gave chase and overtook the bandit car several miles out of town. There a desperate gun battle followed. When the last die-cast group, members of the posse, came forward and found two men in the car, badly wounded. The third had slipped away in the woods.

The wounded men were rushed to a hospital where one died. The other bandit, who will recover, gave his name as John Matthews of Dallas, Texas. He said the dead companion was Willy H. Galloway from Fort Worth, Texas. Matthews said the man who escaped was Tom Davis of Chicago.

Ten thousand dollars in currency was recovered in the bandit car. The balance of the loot, valued at $10,000, is believed to have been taken by the fleeing bandit.

A group of armed citizens, working with the sheriff's posse were hunting down the missing bandit today.

BOLIVIA, PARAGUAY SIGN TO BAN WAR

Conciliation Commission, with Nine Judges, To Begin
Functioning

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—War was definitely put to a halt today as a means of settling the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay. Instead, a conciliation commission, the fruit of the Pan American conference, will begin to function today. Nine judges, five of them from central members of the Pan American family of nations will determine the cause and responsibility for the bloody border clashes in the Chaco between Bolivian and Paraguayan troops, which began Dec. 11.

With simple ceremony a conciliation protocol was signed last night in the tropical setting of the Pan American building here by Luis De Medeiros, Bolivian minister, and Juan Jauregui, Paraguayan charge d'affaires.

Secretary of State Kellogg presided at the signing as president of the Pan American conciliation and arbitration conference, which had just before gotten into shape for final signing tomorrow two treaties to prevent war affecting 20 Pan American nations. Argentina alone remains without the fold.

A few moments before the Paraguayan Bolivian protocol was to be signed, word reached the Brazilian ambassador, Dr. Amaral, that his government had changed its mind about accepting a place on the conciliation commission. The state department had previously announced that word had come from Buenos Aires that Brazil would accept.

Frank J. Gould's $5,000,000 gambling place near Nice was ready for opening January 1 save that he lacked the governernment apparently being unable to decide whether it is better to protect from competition the existing much less elegant casinos or appear to discourage the investment of foreign capital in France.

A Menace to Citizens.

We are unable to understand the course of reasoning followed by our police authorities in connection with the killing of Cecil Calbert New Year's Eve. It is possible that, in thought, we do them injustice, but to us their attitude seems to be that, if he came to his death as the result of being hit by a stray bullet fired by some celebrant of the coming of the new year, there is nothing more to be done.

As we have said, we may wrong the police in holding this view, but if such is their feeling, it certainly is a wrong one. The fact, if it could be established as a fact, that the shot which killed Calbert was fired by a New Year's Eve celebrant without thought of hitting him or anybody else, would not clear the one doing the shooting of responsibility for the death.

Had Calbert been run down by a motorist who was at the time violating the law, just as the person who killed him was violating the law by firing off a revolver, pistol or rifle, it is hardly probable that the authorities would hold that it was a mere accident and let it go at that. They would do their utmost to apprehend the motorist and take him before a court that he might be punished as law provides, yet for some reason they do not seem to feel that there is a call for such a course in the case in point.

Whoever shot and killed Calbert did so while acting in violation of the law. More than that, the one who fired the fatal shot was guilty of criminal carelessness, and it is hard to figure how one who would thus shoot off a firearm can be held to be other than indifferent to human life.

It is but a matter of a few months since there was a somewhat similar case in the city which was never run down by the police authorities. If shooting into homes is to go unpunished, it will not be long until it becomes common, and the lives of citizens generally will no longer be safe. If citizens can thus be shot and killed with impunity, no citizen will be free from menace. It is time that those guilty of indiscriminate shooting,
if it is no more than that, should cease,

Make Good, Mayor Murphy!

It is the view of this newspaper that to Mayor M. Murphy the making of a far better mayor than the city has had in many years. All who know him speak highly of him, holding him honest, conscientious, fair and profoundly interested in the welfare of the city and devoted to the advancement of its interests.

But no matter what may be the characteristics and qualifications of Mayor Murphy for the position he has assumed as the result of the death of Mayor Haen, he can not be the mayor he should be, or the mayor he is employed to be, if he follows the course pursued by local mayors for quite a number of years.

It has been the policy of our mayors to name a head of the service department and a head of the safety department and depend upon them very largely for the running of the operations of the city. They did not seem to feel that the running of the city was up to them. They did not seem to realize that they should be active in seeing that the city's work was done. The head of the city government should be the mayor. He is the head recognized by the law, and the safety director and the service director are merely his lieutenants to carry out his orders and instructions. In recent years, the practice has seemingly been the other way. If the tail, as represented by the mayor's appointees, didn't wag the dog, it at least did about all the wagging does.

We sincerely hope that Mayor Murphy will get away from the course which has resulted in so many irregularities and illegalities in the handling of the city's affairs, practices to which state examiners have called attention and which have been deliberately continued despite promises that they would be abandoned.

We hope that Mayor Murphy will start off right, by demanding that the business of the city be legally transacted rather than transacted in violation of the law. We hope that he will make it understood that he is the head of the city government and insist upon being its head, directing and managing its affairs under the provisions of the law.
Any one at all conversant with the city's affairs must realize that through incompetence, indifference or willfulness, the best interests of the city have been suffering for many years. We can not help but feel that in some instances, for some reason or cause,
they have been betrayed.

Let us hope that Mayor Murphy will inaugurate a change; that his first concern will be the interests of the people, of all the people of the city, and make it so plain that such is his concern that many suspicions which now obtain will be dissipated.

The people of Marion are paying, and paying heavily, for government, and they should have good government for what they pay.
We believe that Mayor Murphy has it in him
to come nearer delivering the kind of government we should have than any mayor we have had in years, but to do it he will have to be active in his watchfulness of city affairs; he can not depend wholly on others.

And let us say here that if the city government is to retain its present political complexion, there will have to be a decided change in the handling of the city's business.
If there isn't, there is going to be one of the most thorough jobs of political housecleaning ever to be recorded in the city's history, a house-cleaning in which every department of the city government will feel the composite ax of the city's voters.

Owing to a water famine, the people of connection.

The ousting of City Manager James E.

ills from which a municipality may suffer.

Loans amounting to $250,000,000 were Windsor, Ontario, hereafter will confine protect the people of Canada from the bootleggers up there.

Dressing Baby for Winter.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A baby with a wise mother is a fortunate baby. Every good mother desires to be well informed, as well as wise in the application of her knowledge. Every mother is good.
There. Where are we now?

Well, anyway, I want to help these good mothers, and if there is anything I can say to aid their knowledge or help to solve their little problems I shall be happy. I know, too, that if I do this in the care of their babies will be the thing that will make them happy.

What shall we discuss today? Suppose we consider together what to do with babies in order to protect them against the cold.

Not long ago I had an interesting letter from a Pennsylvania woman complaining about the short socks and bare knees of young children. She says it is a shame to permit children to go about blue with cold. Of course, she is right.

But it is not about the older children we are to talk today. That subject we will discuss on another occasion.

What is the proper way to dress a baby for his outdoor life?

Of course, there must be an abundance of coverings to keep out the chill of winter. I doubt if many mothers fail to provide such garments.
The chief fault I have to find is with the time
three garments are applied.

When the mother is doing her own work and must take care of herself and her baby too, there enter many problems. She must comb her own hair and get ready for the street, besides getting the baby ready. Before she puts on her own hat, heavy coat and gloves, it is easier to get the baby
ready for the outing.

This is a mistake. To wrap up that tender youngster in coat, hood, leggings and mittens and then to leave it ten or fifteen or even twenty minutes, while she is making her own toilet is utterly wrong.

On giving it serious thought, you can see why.
The child is sure to perspire freely. With its hot garments, plus the heat of the house, the infant will nearly roast. The consequence is that the sweat pours out, causing the intimate garments to become damp.

What happens when the child is taken out into the air? The surfaces will be chilled, of course, due to the evaporation of the moisture. No doubt many a case of amnesia can be traced to the lowered resistance caused by repeated experiences like this.

The tender skin becomes chapped and chafed
by reason of the procedure. All in all it is bad practice.

The mother must make her own preparations for the street before wrapping up the baby. This may be a bit awkward and unless the good woman keeps cool mentally she will perspire physically.
Then she runs the danger of exposing herself to the evils I have suggested may attend the infant.

But if she prepares her hair, puts on her hat
and is all ready for the outing with the exception of coat and gloves, it will take but a moment to apply them. This will permit taking the child out-of-doors almost immediately. That is the way it should be.

Of course, I need not point out the importance of ample coverings in bitter weather. Make sure they are chosen with reference to the thermometer.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

V. O. Q.—What should a girl seventeen years old weigh, who is five feet one inch tall?

—How can I reduce?

—For her age and height she should weigh about 115 pounds.

—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. Exercise is, of course, essential.

D. M. Q.—What will remove freckles?

—If many hours of sleep should a girl of fourteen have?

—Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach for freckles. Try using a good cold cream after applying the preparation which may prove drying to the skin.

—About nine hours.

H. M. Q.—Will help a cough caused by tuberculosis?

—Will cod liver oil help one with this disease?

—Not familiar with this preparation, therefore, I can not advise you about it.

—Yes.—Copyright, 1929, Newspaper Feature

CLEANING UP.

By Other Editors.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

When the Panama canal, joining the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, was authorized and later opened in 1915, it was generally supposed that the problem of water traffic between the East and the West had been solved. But now, after forty-two years of use of the Panama canal, it appears that the capacity of that canal will within a few years be reached. It becomes evident that the commerce of the world demands still another waterway between the oceans.

Before it was finally determined to construct the Panama canal there was a projected route in consideration to provide for a canal and waterway across Central America through Nicaragua. The Nicaragua route was the preference of many of the legislators. And now that the time is coming when another route for shipping is to be necessary, it is proposed that the United States shall again undertake this great work and run a canal through Nicaragua. Senator Edge of New Jersey, author of a resolution providing for a thorough investigation and survey of the proposed canal route through Nicaragua, has given notice he will ask for action on the measure at the present session of congress. It is not an undertaking to be lightly entered upon and it will receive serious consideration when the senate reconvenes.

The United States is in a position to go ahead with this proposed Nicaraguan canal. The treaty rights with Nicaragua have been in existence for years. President-Elect Hoover, himself an engineer, during his recent visit to Nicaragua discussed the matter at length with the president of that country. It is not unlikely that Mr. Hoover will be glad to see this great engineering project initiated during his administration. It is estimated that it will require years to be brought to a completion. The time the work will require is a matter of estimate only, although American methods of construction may shorten it appreciably.

The business passing through the Panama canal has grown by leaps and bounds. It has doubled every five years and is practically five times as great as it was during the first year of the operation of the canal. Senator Edge believes that by 1940 certainly by 1960—the capacity of the Panama canal will have been exceeded. (The question naturally arises as to whether Nicaraguan canal will not so reduce the business of the Panama canal as to make the earlier canal or both "unprofitable." But there seems no end to the increase in the commerce and travel between the West and the East and the prospect is that eventually both canal routes will be well patronized.—Washington Star, January 1.

STATE POLICE.

There are some good arguments for the creation of a state police force, a proposed step to which the legislature is likely to give serious consideration at the coming session. Things happen in the country sometimes which emphasize the need of the rural residents for such protection. There are chicken thieves, immoral motorists, feeding badly, and drivers who are so heedless that they sometimes escape the prompt attention they ought to have from the representatives of law and order.

The present prohibition situation provides an argument on the other side. Since the inauguration of Volsteadism state police forces elsewhere are reliably said to have degenerated miserably. The opportunities for graft are such that many troops, doing hard and not infrequently dangerous work for relatively small pay, are said to have succumbed to the temptation just as city police, prohibition agents themselves and other public officials often do.

It is a gloomy way of viewing the question but none the less there is a great deal of reason to fear that to establish a state police force would result in the extension of the system of official graft which now disgraces the country. In our own state we have the now happily discontinued rural liquor courts with their materials and opportunities, to judge by. The aim of many of these officials seemed to be not to enforce the law, but to make money for themselves out of it, and one evil leading to another, they took advantage of other laws than the liquor laws, notably the traffic laws, to ply their nefarious trade. This unpleasant consideration of the possibility of the extension of the system of official graft should be given careful attention by the legislators when they take up the question of the establishment of a state police force.—Ohio State Journal.

not feel them due to the hurricane proof tall

New York's locality mayors are another high light of massed civilization. Self-appointed, they are regarded as "friends of the peep"—always ready to bear their troubles and extend aid. They are generally cafe keepers, bondsmen or lawyers and wield political influence. Among them are "Wire-

Max Dick of Allen street, "Stitch" McCarthy
of Grand street, Phil Karfunk of Delancey

Frank Dostal of Avenue A. In many sections the mayors are elected by popular vote and winners give a grand spread afterward.

Science and Formulae.

BY GARRETT P. SERVICE.

For the general reader who wishes to follow the rapid progress of scientific speculation and especially of scientific speculation, with understanding judgment, an article in Science by F. R. Moulton on the "Planetary Hypothesis" is worth thoughtful perusal. It will give the reader a needed warning against the extraordinary theories, based merely on the "authority" of blarneyed mathematicians and particularly in reference to the supposed infinitude of conclusions reached through mathematical formulae.

Mathematics is not science. Let that be well understood. Mathematics is the most powerful tool, or weapon, that science has invented for itself. But it has the dangerous quality of a razor or an automatic pistol.
Mathematics who demand total freedom for mathematical speculation and complete exemption of mathematical results from all responsibility to human facts, are contrasted
instead of advocates of science.

Dr. Moulton is himself one of the foremost of American mathematicians, but he is not blinded by false ideas about the use of mathematical formulae. In the article to which I refer he does not set out to criticize mathematicians or mathematicians, but to show the real nature of the planetary hypothesis of the origin of the planetary system, and to point out how it has been unfairly ignored by English theorists, who have at the same time used its very terms and reasonings as the basis of speculations put forth in their own names.

Essentially, but none the less effectively, Dr. Moulton sounds the useful warning to which I referred at the beginning. For instance, read this illuminating passage:

Movement for Organizing of Townships Spreads in Ohio, Latest List Shows

Marion County and Others in This Section of State Included in List of Associations Formed for Improvement of Public Service

Marion county and other counties in this region of Ohio are included in the growing list of new organizations of township trustees and clerks being formed throughout the state, according to an article appearing in the December issue of Better Highways, a magazine published in Columbus.

At least 50 of Ohio's 88 counties now have county associations of township trustees and clerks, the magazine reports. The purpose is to secure better acquaintance among the various township officials, to promote more effective cooperation among townships as well as with county officials, to acquire better information concerning the duties of township officials—in short, to give better service to the people of their communities.

The county associations usually meet quarterly, but a few, including the one in Marion county, meet every two months. President J. R. Thomas, of the state association of trustees and clerks, who has attended most of the county meetings held recently, declared in his message at these meetings that "house rule in affairs pertaining to the right of the rural citizen, and not the sole privilege of those who dwell in cities."

Counties in This District
A list of the association officers in this section of the state follows:
Union county: J. H. Clark, of Taylor township, president; W. H. Curry, of Chatham township, vice president; R. W. Zimmerman, clerk of Darby township, secretary-treasurer; E. V. Thompson, of Mill Creek township, organization committee.

Marion county: H. M. Coddice, of Bowling Green township, president; E. T. Virden, of Pleasant township, vice president; Fred K. Dix, of Prospect township, secretary-treasurer; Walter Williams, of Grand township, state organization committee.

Wyandot county: Harry Barclay, of Crane township, president; Orville O. Corbin, of Richland township, vice president; Paul Konkle, of Sremore township, secretary-treasurer; Avery Needs, of Tynochtee township, state organization committee.

Crawford county: H. M. Coddice, of Sandusky township, vice president; Otto L. Bishop, of Cranberry township, secretary-treasurer; George F. Cole, of Vernon township, state organization committee; W. W. Davis, of Auburn township.

Hardin county: R. C. Pees, clerk of Blanchard township, president; John P. Simon, trustee of Pleasant township, secretary-treasurer.

Delaware county: George Work, of Berkshire township, president; J. J. Marklin, of Delaware township, vice president; W. E. Loar, clerk of Berkshire township, organization committee.

ON THE Streets of Marion WITH STAR STAFF

FAIRLY GOOD JOB

At least one Marion man is willing to accept a job paying $100,000 a year.

At any rate he has been interested enough to make inquiry about it. The inquiry was received in Washington several days ago following publication of the announcement that a Washington corporation had an opening for some Ohio man who was willing to labor for that six-figure stipend.

The announcement was made in a letter sent to an Ohio congressman, advising him that in addition to paying $100,000 a year, the job would provide for payment of all expenses.

The response from Marion, which came from a business man, according to newspaper reports, read as follows: "In your article I notice that there is a Washington, D. C., concern that has a position vacant in Ohio where they want a manager of high merit. I notice that this concern wants a man who is familiar with public affairs and acquainted with state and county officials. As a matter of curiosity, I am wondering what kind of a company would be advertising for such a high-priced executive. What are the strings attached to it? I would be pleased to hear from you in regard to this matter at your convenience."

Newspaper reports indicate that the local man will not be without competition, as responses from prospective applicants have fairly deluged the Washington postoffice.

The requirements stipulate that the man chosen must be familiar with public affairs and acquainted with state and county officials. He must be financially reliable, sober and of good repute.

SAME OLD APPEAL

Despite the effect of manifold clothing, boyish haircuts and the discarding of clinging habits, the circle of today still appear to have the same old appeal. Possibly most people disagree, assuredly the men, but an incident happened several days ago that firmly proves the statement.

A girl, dressed in a suit and close-fitting hat tipped at a rough angle, her face well done in pluck and white, was walking down Center st. near Main st., when a young fellow in a hideously patterned Ford came up behind her and started hawking. The girl was evidently absorbed in her own thoughts, and didn't pay any attention to the voice. The youthful autoist was so determined in his effort to attract attention, however, that he didn't see the street lights change from "Go" to "Stop," and abruptly ran into the back of a large car whose driver was more interested in getting along than in appraising the abundance of "sex appeal" that a girl still possesses.

TRANSFORMATION

A work on remodeling of the South Main st. building to be occupied by Kleumater Bros. nears completion, local citizens are beginning to appreciate the wonders which can be accomplished in the reconstruction of old structures.

Almost before the public has been able fully to realize what has been going on, the building is transformed from a dingy, unattractive old-liner into a thoroughly modern business block that would grace any thoroughfare.

The old-fashioned two-story front has been replaced by a three-story facing provided with a store entrance of the latest design. Back of this is an enlarged and practically new interior which is to house one of Marion's oldest and most progressive mercantile establishments.

Although no dramatic announcements have been made, there are rumors that similar "treatment" may be given this year to other antique structures in the uptown district. The Kleumater achievement is certain to have beneficial results. It is generally believed.

Work on the reconstruction, which has given South Main st. practically a entirely new building, will be completed in about two weeks, according to present expectations. Kleumaters expect to move their store to the new location in February.

FROM THE DEPTHS

AMBITION is a strange thing, and it often takes unusual events to bring it to the surface. It was only through John H. Murphy's ambition that he raised himself from a prison inmate, rightfully there, to a writer who seems "destined by Fate to shine afar." He saw the folly of his former life and was determined to make good as a writer, not because that particular vocation called him so strongly, but because of his desire to make up for the shortcomings of his past life. Possibly if he had not lived as he did, he would never have discovered his ability. Nevertheless, ambition called him, and he is to be paroled in February.

Daphne

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FIFTY SEVEN
"You'll have to speak more distinctly," Mrs. Colby bridled at the other end of the wire.
"Then will you please tell him," Daphne said timidly, "not to send the car back for me, because I'm not going straight home."
"Tell him what?"
"I thought you said that! You'll have to speak more distinctly, Miss Daphne, I don't know what you mean. There isn't any man here. Is someone coming? What's that? I don't hear you."
In the end she had to give up. "Well, I'll just have to be back at the building to tell the chauffeur not to wait, that's all," she decided, but it wasn't so easy to break the news to Ralph.
He ordered a marvelous dinner. A special salad, steak and french fries, all the things she liked. He smiled at her across the table, admiring her, noticing all the little things, things she had wanted him to notice, and he never had before.
"Pretty hat, Daphne."
"The old blue hat she had bought to please him last summer. That had been irresistible to him before. Her fingers flew to it instinctively. A little pat. "Do you really like it—it's old now."
"Yes, blue is your color, isn't it?" She wished she had a whole blue oufit. But her pleasure was marred by the further glances she couldn't help giving to her wrist watch. Five minutes to six. Six o'clock. Five minutes past six. The waiter brought the steak with a flourish. "Shall I serve sir?" Ten minutes past six before he was finished, and gone.

"This is something like!" Ralph grinned. "Sawee, Daphne? Remember the first dinner we had together? At the hash-house down by the ferry?"
Did she remember? Could she ever forget? And she leaned forward, her eyes dark with excitement, with unshed tears. "Of course I remember Ralph. . . and Ralph, I'm afraid I'll have to hurry tonight, because Mr. Greely is sending his car back for me at 6:50, and the chauffeur won't know what to think if I'm not there."
"So he sends his car for you now?" Not all the time! she laughed, and her voice sounded unnatural to her own ears. "Just tonight because I was going to be late. Just the one night I met you!"
"Don't let that embarrass you," he said coldly. "I'm not surprised. It's more generally known than you may think."
Her head flew to her throat. "What's more generally known?"
"What do you mean, Ralph?"
He stared at her, coldly, impassively. Like a stranger.
"You don't think that Mr. Greely—that Mr. Greely . . . Oh, Ralph!"
He continued to watch her, a strange gleam in his eye. "Come," he said. "Don't make a scene. Of course people talk. What do you expect, with Greely's reputation? Don't pretend you don't know all about the woman he's had!"
"At 50. Oh, Ralph! And even if he is like that, you don't suppose I'm one of them, do you?" The idea was so ridiculous . . . Mr. Greely, with his cuts, wounds, and his cane, and congress boots . . . Her first hurt indignation melted. Mr. Greely! She couldn't be sure if it was so funny! She sighed, the tears in her eyes.
"He's all right," he laughed with her. "He's all right to anyone who knows you as I do, Daphne. But it looks bad to others. Darn bad. That's what I was going to talk to you about tonight. I've got to thinking about it and I see I made a rotten mistake, taking you to his office that way. I had a little run-in with him this morning. From now on it's likely that there will be no love lost between us. You'll have to quit, Daphne. Right away—that's flat."

She blinked at him, wondering if she heard aright. "Why? I couldn't quit if I wanted to. Not just now, anyway. I'm doing some special work."

Allan's work . . . work that might be worth thousands of dollars to Ralph. . . to Ralph, who had stood the loss for his friend . . . "Oh, you don't understand Mr. Greely!" she burst out exasperatedly. "He's thinking about your interests all the time."

"Cut that!" he ordered sharply. "No soft-soaping me. It's a fight to a finish from now on. You can't be friendly with two camps. You'll have to choose."
Still she refused to take it seriously. "You'll feel differently about it, when you've cooled down. He runs a lot, but he'd do anything for you."
"Are you going to quit, or aren't you?"
She saw he meant it then, and her temper, violent as it was, rose to meet him. "Quit! Of course I'm not going to quit! What right have you to ask me. You failed me the night my father died. You've always failed me. You let me . . . let me love you . . . and then you pushed me aside for Crystal!"
For Crystal . . . what was she saying? Talking to him like a jealous woman . . . accusing him . . . showing him she cared . . .
Tears blinded her, tears of humiliation. She clenched her shaking hands in her lap, staring at her plate, too proud to brush the brimming tears away, hating him, hating herself, hating everything.
And his voice came, thick with anger. "Accuse me! That's good. When you double-crossed me for Allan—that crook—that jail bird!"
"For Allan?" She hadn't meant to answer. The words just slipped out.
"You heard me. Didn't you?" To Greely's, the pair of you? Didn't I lend my car for the day? Yes, like I've been lending him things ever since I first set eyes on him! School books. Sweaters. Money.

Everything! And then you. Do you think I was blind? And now Greely . . . it makes me sick. I'm getting so I don't trust anybody any more. Greely, my father's friend . . .
She got unsteady to her feet, pushed back her chair. She even managed to struggle, unassisted, into her coat. As she walked through the maze of light-colored tables, past black-coated waiters who seemed to be looking at her with trays, she thought she could hear Ralph's voice still. Snarling. Snarling at her whom he used to love.
Rollins, Mr. Greely's chauffeur, waited outside the Dolio National Bank building until after seven, but the boss stenog didn't show.
He was playing pool in Grady's basement, with a carefree evening ahead of him, when Daphne got off the street car and dragged herself up Mrs. Hinkle's rickety steps. She had forgotten about Greely's car. Forgetting everything except that her childhood dream of one day winning Ralph McEveitt was dead.
Mr. Spellman, freshly shaved, and wearing his new summer topcoat, saw her coming in, and fished a little placidly. "Hello, cutie, how's things?"
If he hadn't gotten out of the way she would have walked right into him. Glazed eyes forced straight ahead as he moved on to her room like a girl who walks in her sleep.
An hour later, though it might have been the middle of the night, for all Daphne's conception of the passing of time, she roused herself to hear someone beating on her door.
"She's up in the dark!" "Where you calling me?"
"Calling you?" Mrs. Blackie mimicked. "I was shouting. Aber! I don't know how some people sleep so hard. McCardie wants you on the telephone. Maybe it's all right. I don't know. You better come quick. It don't sound good to me!"
To be continued.

When your child is sleepless.

This remedy rarely fails.

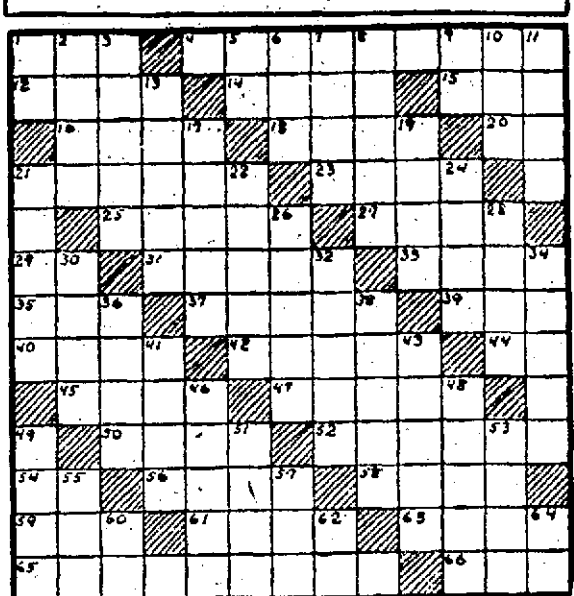

Constipation is a common cause of sleeplessness, both in children and adults. When a child is wakeful and fretful, see if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour, irritating waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the child's system, leaving him calm, happy and content.

Children are this harmless "fruit" laxative. It banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and issues pure blood, a clear complexion, joyous spirit, a keen brain, healthy appetite and helps to build a strong constitution.

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Friday, and anyone that thinks I was sorry ought to have their hands examined by an osteopath. It is about as cold as ever it was and a fella would think that if the ponds and rivers are ever going to get warm enough for a fella to do any swimming in them they would begin to get busy. I fed one horse and milked two cows today like I have always done all my life, and I guess a fella ought to be glad that horses don't milk or I would have more work on my hands. It was too cold for the bunch to come out every morning like they did before I had spent all my Christmas money on them that I had left because I got the string of beads gave to me that I gave to Younis, but Younis and Probie and Maggie came and were standing near the fire in the kitchen talking to my mother whilst she got breakfast. My mother had a big pitcher on the reservoir on the back of the stove and also got it piled high with wet jumpers and picked it up with her apron to keep from burning her hands and started for the dining room. Probie stepped out of my mother's way, but Annabelle Lee had come out in the kitchen without anyone noticing her, and sat down on the floor right back of Probie, and my mother fell over her before she could stop herself. The platter hit on the sill of the door to the dining room and smashed to pieces and cakes went everywhere and we were all trying to find out if my mother was hurt, and when she said she wasn't we were all glad; because my mother is the best mother anyone has ever had and the prettiest one. My mother got busy right away mixing up some more pancakes, but my father said he had to swallow his breakfast so fast that the pancakes lapped over on the way down and burnt all the way.

I gathered up the pancakes that had went on the floor and left one under the stove for the cat and took the others out to Jubilee. By the time I had fed them to him his sides stuck out, and the other dogs was so jealous because they hadn't got any that they were growling. Then when I went to go back in the house the door opened all of a sudden and I got a dipper full of cold water right in the face, and then Probie pulled me in and said she was sorry and started to wiping the water off my face, but I saw she had the store polishing cloth, so I took it away from her and wiped her face good with it.

Younis told me that Probie had got the dipper of water and took a little drink, and then she had waited till she saw the knob turn before she pulled the door open and threw out the water. She got what was coming to her all right.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Clear Coast for Conference

WITH Katie's assurance of discretion in my care, and clasping tightly the evidence of "Janet Rowdon," I hurried to my room and put into my desk the things she had given me. I wished to show them to Lillian and Katherine and get their advice concerning my treatment of Mary's secret, but not until Prince Georges left, and I could be sure that Dicky's niece was safely out of earshot, Georges might leave at any minute and Mary come dashing up stairs.

As I came out into the hall again I saw Marion doing a little dance step outside her door.

"I'm celebrating, Auntie Madge," she said. "My lug and suitcase are all packed to the last handkerchief. Every last tear has been mended and my room is in order. All I have to do in the parking blue is to put my tennis racket in its press tonight and I'll be ready to start at daylight tomorrow for school. Have you heard from Uncle Dicky yet?"

I comprehended—and resented—her avoidance of her stepfather's name. But I was careful not to let her see my reaction.

"He hasn't telephoned today," I said. "I doubt that he will. He knows that we expect him and your stepfather for dinner tonight, so he probably will not phone unless something happens to delay them. Congratulations upon your efficiency! Do you mind if I take advantage of it? I'd like you to do something for me."

I lowered my voice, for the upper hall is an open one, and the outer doors downstairs I knew, were thrown wide to the Autumn sunlight. It was possible for Mary and Georges to hear my ordinary tone, although I doubted that they would pay attention to anything but their own conversation. But I was taking no risk of being overheard.

Marion's quickness of perception is like her mother's. She lowered her own voice to a murmur.

"You know I'd love to do anything for you, Auntie Madge," she said. "Then as soon as Georges goes get Mary out to the tennis court. Keep her there until I come out to the court. After that it does not matter. And—forget that I asked you."

She nodded brightly. "Of course," she murmured. "As it happens, I was going to do that very little thing, anyhow. I shan't have a game with her again until spring and I want to see if I can beat her this afternoon. She's been winning all this week."

The veranda door opened and shut again and Marion dashed over to a window.

"Georges is going now," she said. "I'll go down right away."

I waited until I saw her begin to play opposite Mary before sunning myself. Katherine and Lillian to my room. As I looked the door Lillian struck one hand into the palm of the other.

"You to see Katie's uncovered the door," she said.

"You'll have no takers," I told her. "Sit down and get ready to doff your coat before our handmaids, who assured me at two-minute intervals during our interview that she was a graduate of a detective correspondence school last 20 lessons."

"And I wasn't there to hear!" Lillian laughed. "Let her hurry up and sweep the dust, Madge. Who is Janet Rowdon?"

"Mary herself—none other," I returned, smiling at their astonished faces. "She's been scolding that money to herself at Southampton and has an account in the bank there under the name of Janet Rowdon."

I outlined quickly the story Katie had told me and showed them the envelope and the bank deposit slip which had proved my little maid's story. Both Katherine and Lillian listened intently, but Lillian erred out impatiently as soon as I had finished.

"In one way the mystery is deeper than ever," she said. "The specter of a blackmailer has been laid, but why in the world does she want to pull a trick like that?"

"I think I know," Katherine said softly.

MISSING GIRL HOME; KIDNAPING MYSTERY

Released Near Gasoline Station by "Old Man with Cane"

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 4.—Little the worse for her harrowing experience, Doris Turner, missing thirteen days, was released today in the home of her parents today after being held captive by a mysterious "old man who carries a cane" for 24 hours.

Her legs bound tightly with a cord at the ankles, she struggled into a gasoline service station on the outskirts of the city early last night, and told Edgar Moss, the operator, her story. He then telephoned her distressed parents and then took the girl home.

"The pretty school girl said she had been kidnapped Wednesday morning, dragged and carried to a one-story shack, the location of which she did not know, and held captive until early last night.

Last night, the girl said, she was put in an automobile and put out about a mile from the filling station. The girl said her kidnapper was an "old man who carried a cane." Her school friends had reported seeing her in numerous positions on their way to school.

Late in School

"I was late and having a hard time Wednesday morning when the old man drove up and asked me to get into the car through the back door," Doris said. "He asked me if he could drive me to school and although I was afraid of him, I thought I would take the chance because I was tired."

The old man gave her a blanket, a hat, and a coat, and after that, she didn't come to until Wednesday afternoon.

"I was in a small room shack, with no windows. The old man was in the room with me, but he made no effort to harm me," Doris said.

Thrown Away Cane

"When the old man reached the abandoned lot he dispensed with the cane and straightened out the lamp in his hand. He didn't appear to be an old man," the girl declared. For hours after she found herself in the shack, she didn't eat. She was afraid, she declared, there might be a drug in the food."

"The old man asked me to eat a slice from my notebook and write the letter that was pinned to my notebook. I wrote as he dictated, including the part about my being treated kindly. I don't know who pulled the letter."

The girl said "the old man" was out of the room most of the time and that she could hear him talking with another man. She heard the old man making threats to kill her, she declared, the other man, who said, urged her to return to her home.

Early last night, Doris told her parents, the two men handled her into the car, placed a cloth over her eyes, bound her wrists, ankles and stuffed a handkerchief in her mouth and drove away.

CREDIT GALION WITH 12.5 PER CENT GAIN

Population Increases 926 in Nine Years, According to Survey

GALION, Jan. 4.—In the last nine years the population of Galion has increased 926, it is shown in a population survey made for The Marion Star by the Newspaper Feature Bureau. The survey estimates the present population of the city at 5,309. Census figures gave the 1920 population as 5,374.

"The addition of 926 persons to the population gives Galion an increase of 12.5 per cent in the last nine years. In making the survey the feature bureau took into consideration the increase of births over deaths, the increase in the number of qualified voters, the increase in the number of school children and the increase in the number of domestic water users."

Stocks in Lead

Records show that births have exceeded deaths by 640 in the last nine years. A 12 per cent increase has been recorded in the number of qualified voters in the city. The number of children of school age has increased 16 per cent since 1920. There has also been a 15 per cent increase in the number of domestic water users which indicates that the number of families has increased in proportion. The number of families is estimated to have increased from 2,052 to 2,312. Galion officials and business men estimate the population at 5,300.

The survey shows that at present there are 3,680 persons in the city employed for gain. Of these 2,837 are males and 823 are females. The 1920 census figures show that 3,271 persons were then employed for gain. Of these 2,510 were males and 737 were females.

Females in Majority

Females slightly outnumber men in Galion at present as they did in 1920. Nine years ago the Galion population consisted of 3,781 females and 3,320 males. At present there are 4,224 females and 1,079 males according to the survey.

Nine years ago there were 3,650 persons over 21 years of age in the city. Of these 2,374 were males and 2,300 females. The survey estimates the number of persons over 21 at the end of 1928 as 5,100, males constituting 2,671 and females 2,319.

The number of persons over 10 years of age is estimated to have increased from 6,211 to 6,901. The number of males has increased from 3,050 to 3,131 and the number of females from 2,164 to 3,360.

PLAN FIGHT AGAINST PACT RATIFICATION

Old Irreconcilable Group Opposing Unconditional Approval of Treaty

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The old irreconcilable band, the ranks depleted, was preparing a new "League of Nations" battle today against unconditional ratification of the Kellogg-Brand anti-war treaty.

With the way cleared for exclusive consideration of the treaty, administration leaders proposed to hold the compact before the senate until a final vote is reached. Some optimistic leaders predicted its ratification by Saturday night, but the opposition declared a vote would not be reached for many days to come.

Congressmen Support

President Coolidge, anxious to close the White House regime with an outstanding achievement in the interests of world peace, threw his influence behind the administration ranks. The compact likewise has the endorsement of hundreds of church organizations, peace associations and public groups.

The irreconcilables, led by Senator James A. Reed, Democrat of Missouri, however, argued that these organizations know nothing about international affairs and point to how time has justified their judgment when they fought the League of Nations covenant and the World Court pact. The irreconcilable group though is not in defeat of the treaty—rather its ratification appears to insure the safety of American interests.

Three Conditions

The irreconcilable "reservation of explanation" would fix three conditions for American adherence. First, the United States would be free to act in defense of its traditional policies (the Monroe Doctrine) or its territory at any time; second, it would never be obliged to use force to uphold the treaty against any offending nation; and third, it would not be obligated to the terms of any other treaty (the League of Nations covenant) to which it has not adhered.

In opening debate on the treaty, Senator William L. Borah, Republican of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, declared such terms were unjustified. He declared all nations, adhering to the treaty, were given the right to act in self defense at all times. He also asserted there could be no implied obligation for the United States to use force at any time against any other nation, when the treaty's only purpose was to "outlaw all war."

With JACK or JILL

BY JILL
"THE GUN RUNNER," with Ricardo Cortez, Nora Lane, Gino Corrado and John S. Polls. Through Saturday at the Palace. Story suggested by Arthur Stringer's novel of the same name and directed by Edgar Lewis.

THE life of a soldier isn't so bad if one may judge it from the way Ricardo Cortez plays the part in "The Gun Runner." The president, John S. Polls, seems scarcely as presidential as we might expect and Nora Lane, as his wife, doesn't register as much vitally as one is wont to attribute to maidens of this particular class, but Cortez as the reckless Jules makes up for this and carries the story through with interest aplenty. Not heavy, but an entertaining picture.

JULIO draws the lot of serving a term at hard work in prison at delivering to the president the traitor within the border and it is curious to fulfill this mission that he falls prey to cupid's dart. True soldier that he is he gets his man but—tell any more would spoil the picture for you.

The sub-titles are well written and tell you the story in a humorous vein.

If you come away from the Palace with an itchy heel you may truthfully blame it on Cortez's Kentucky Mountaineers, father and his five sons, right from the Blue Grass state. "Arkansas Traveler" and some more old timers to right over the footlights and you and the boys feel right well acquainted. They sing, play, and one of the boys shows you how to act in an old-fashioned square dance.

Ada Brown, herself, does some Southern Syncopations and does them like she liked to, so of course does them well. Aided and abetted by Harry at the piano, they make a good team.

Jeannette Buds opens the vaudeville program with some clever novelty work in presenting the mystic mirror. The bill is exceptional in that there are no jokes, nothing spectacular, and lots of fun. It's a good program.

NITROGEN PLANT TO BE BUILT IN RUSSIA

American Engineers Design Million Dollar Structure for Soviets

MOSCOW, Jan. 4.—The first nitrogen fixation plant in Russia for the manufacture of fertilizers and explosives is to be constructed under the supervision of American engineers. Lewis I. Jones of the Nitrogen Engineering corporation of New York has signed a contract for drafting plans and directing the installation and operation of the plant.

The plant will cost slightly more than $1,000,000 on the most modern American lines. Considerably portion of the machinery will be bought in the United States.

Used in conjunction with enormous deposits of potash which the Soviet government has been developing rapidly, the nitrogen fixation plant will stop up one of the greatest gaps in Russia's military defense. Soon after the beginning of the war the czar's army ran short of ammunition. The production in the country fell far short of the needs of an army of millions, and the Allies had to resort to the slow and costly process of shipping in gunpowder to keep Russia in the war as an active combatant.

Turning New Pages

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

WITH the holiday season of 1928 and 1929 behind us and the urge to get off on the right foot with regard to our literary pursuits for the New Year's one's footsteps wander towards library and bookshop with but one purpose in mind, something to read. Wading through even the most alluringly titled best seller seems as a task rather than a pleasure so soon after the orgy of candy, plum puddings, fruit cakes and other delicacies of the yuletide, so what to do about it is the next problem.

If you are afflicted thusly why not try for a starter, the "Prize Stories of 1928." You'll melt with sympathy for Marfousha who is about to lose her lover, one minute, and the next shiver in fear at the fate of Sargis McFistish should the Babu Pargal decide to punish him for being in her court, in the $500 prize story, "The Parrot," by Walter Durrant.

The home of Marfousha in the outskirts of a little town in the Ural foothills in Russia furnishes the setting for most of the story and at no time does one rise above the surroundings, which of course are sordid. How Sargis turns the trick and saves Marfousha's happiness, holds your interest to the last period.

Others in the list are "River Witch," "Hot Cops," "Blood Ground," "Never in This World," "The Twining Treasure of Kings," "Blanche Cotton Williams tells in an interesting introduction why the judges decided on these stories and how.

Life of Peasant Saint-Sinner A BIOGRAPHICAL work which reads like a novel is "Rosa Peasant-Sinner," translated by W. S. Flint and D. F. Tait. Names, dates and incidents set forth in historical manner, are authentic, it is said, in that the Soviet archives were opened to the author.

Starting as a Siberian peasant, shown to have most of the ordinary virtues and vices of his time and place, Rasputin gradually became the mysterious and powerful figure of his time. He swayed men and nations by the power of his eye and he might have prevented the World war. His murder at the hands of his jealous rivals in politics undoubtedly foreshadowed the death of an ancient dynasty and hastened the collapse of the largest nation in Europe.

Africa Is Setting for "The Lioness" ENTHUSIASM openly is pronounced in Dr. Ferdinand Ossendowski's new book, "The Lioness," to be published early next month. The story has the setting of his African travel books and is the story of Alsie, the wife of Ras Ben Hoggar, who after her husband was killed for handily by the French, was picked up by a slave dealer into going with him on the race that he would

MEMORIAL STAMPS GO ON SALE HERE

First Allotment of Wright Aeronautics Issue Received at Postoffice

Marion postoffice received its first allotment of the Wright Memorial stamps yesterday morning and placed them on sale yesterday noon. The stamps, issued in commemoration of the International Civil Aeronautics Conference called by President Coolidge on Dec. 12, 13 and 14 at Washington, D. C., are in two denominations, one-cent and two-cent stamps. The one-cent stamp is printed in red ink and the five-cent stamp in blue ink. At the top is the wording, "U. S. Postage." Under the panel are the words, "International Civil Aeronautics Conference." On either side of the stamp are narrow borders and within the borders are depicted, on the left, the Washington monument and on the right the United States capitol.

The only difference between the two and the five-cent stamps is that on the two-cent denomination there is a picture of the first Wright airplane as shown by them at Fort Myer, Florida. On the five-cent stamp is a globe showing the eastern and western continents and a modern monoplane flying across it. The numeral "2" appears in the center of the two-cent stamp and the numeral "5" in the center of the five-cent stamp.

NEW WAR HORRORS PICTURED IN TALK

Field Marshal Describes Destruction of Property, Life in Future

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The horrors pertaining to another world war have been vividly pointed out by Field Marshal Sir William Robertson in an address to the League of Nations union.

"Should another great war occur," said the field marshal, "we know that the loss of life and waste of wealth will exceed by many times the experiences of 1914-1918, while the horrors which may be suffered by the civil population from air attacks combined with the use of new chemical substances would seem almost limitless."

"The world will never know what it had to pay for the last war. Taking the belligerents into account, the direct money outlay seemed to have been nearly $200,000,000,000, while the indirect cost of such items as destruction of property and so forth may be put at not less than $150,000,000,000 or some $350,000,000,000 in all."

"The loss of life was about 10,000,000 which was double that caused by all the wars of the preceding 120 years put together, and there were probably not less than 20,000,000 wounded."

Do these two things to avoid "flu"

Keep your system in good condition; also protect your nose and throat

There's no need to get panicky, because the papers are full of news of an influenza epidemic. There's no use in isolating yourself because a lot of other people are sick with it. If you take certain simple precautions every day—and then don't worry—the chances are you will throw off any "flu" germs you are exposed to, and keep well.

We're not recommending that you dose yourself with a lot of medicines, either. Just observe two common-sense health rules which can be easily followed.

FIRST of all, make sure your system is in first class order. Don't let it get slowed up or sluggish. See to it that it functions perfectly. The easiest way to get run down and in a condition to pick up disease is to neglect this all-important matter.

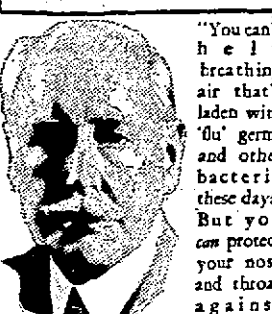

Physicians agree that, particularly in times of epidemic, purging by laxatives and cathartics is not advisable. Many doctors are therefore prescribing Nujol, as in no case does it cause exhaustion or weakening of the system in any way.

Nujol can't possibly upset you or disagree with you. For it contains absolutely no medicine or drugs.

Get a bottle today at your nearest drug store and start taking Nujol tonight as one simple way to keep fit and to protect yourself against influenza.

That's the first precaution. Now for the second. Keep your nose and throat well protected with Mistol.

Dr. David says:

"You can't help breathing air that's laden with 'flu' germs and other bacteria these days. But you can protect your nose and throat against them. Keep them from lodging there and breeding and causing trouble."

"I'm advising all my patients these days to keep Mistol on hand and use it regularly. The first thing in the morning before you go out. And again at night when you come home. Don't be afraid to use it freely. It will do no harm. And then stop worrying. You've done all you can to safeguard yourself."

"Put Mistol up your nose. There's a special dropper that comes in every package that makes it very easy to use. Just tilt your head back and drop it in your nose until you feel it."

in your throat. You'll notice the pleasant, cleansing effect at once. Mistol clears your head and makes breathing easy. It has a healing, soothing effect on the membranes and relieves any irritation or inflammation. It helps dry up a running nose. Use it, too, as a gargle. Mistol is good for a sore throat or hacking cough. And above all, protects the nose and throat against germs.

"Don't wait till you begin to sneeze or your throat aches. Take my advice and get a bottle of Mistol today. Every druggist knows it."

The combination treatment of Nujol and Mistol is a double safeguard against influenza. Start this wise two-fold precaution now. Don't delay.

Nujol and Mistol are both made by the same famous laboratories, of the finest quality materials and with the greatest skill possible. Both preparations are harmless. At all druggists. Aren't they worth trying?

Bread heads the list of foods that assure fitness.
If your child isn't well nourished, he isn't properly equipped to climb the ladder of life. The physi-

AKRON DEFEATED

AKRON, Jan. 4.—Akron, undefeated basketball team, got away to a bad start in the current season by dropping one to Baldwin-Wallace 27 to 22, on their home court last night. The Eagles from Berea opened up an attack from long range that could not be fended. Schwegler, Baldwin-Wallace center, was the outstanding player for his team. At the half, Baldwin-Wallace led 17 to 11.

MOUNT WINS

KENT Jan. 4.—Mt. Union college basketball team today held a 22 to 25 victory over Kent State Normal following a game on the teachers' floor here last night. Mt. Union demonstrated its superiority throughout but the game was none the less bitterly fought.

RIEGELS MAKING HIS FAMOUS RUN

Babe Ruth Says Yankees Will Win 1929 Pennant

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
NEW YORK Jan. 4.—"Who's going to win it?"

It's funny about things like that. George Ruth the baseball player was carefully concealing his real purpose behind a mask of indifference but a clever bit of humanity showed to look for success and hidden meanings generally is equal to an emergency. For example, I have an idea that what he really wanted to know was, who was going to beat them.

It wasn't a question as a matter of fact. It was an answer. It merely was George's way of saying that nobody was going to beat the New York Yankees out of the 1929 pennant for the simple reason that, in his opinion, they had precisely nobody to beat.

The Philadelphia Athletics, the writer suggested tentatively.

Oh That Sniff

Master Ruth sniffed. Only a man versed in the language of the sniff, a man like himself who has studied the sniff in its home life from the cover of a nearby tree—could have understood the nature of this sniff.

He replied reflectively that "Korn" was a pretty good short stop. I answered that Korn was to be the third baseman. He arched his brow at me, astounded.

Korning is a pretty good short stop, observed he threateningly. I didn't see where any purpose could be served by pursuing the matter further.

"Yes," said Master Ruth, frowning at least that he was in the company of so who understands thoroughly. We have the same team that won the pennant last year. Lazzeri and Pennock got hurt but we won without them, anyhow, didn't we? We've got the pitching and we've got the hitting and that's about all you need nowadays. Besides, who's going to beat us?

I knew it. He was trying to fool me again. If I hadn't been on my guard, as a matter of fact, I would have been convinced that what he really wanted to know was who was going to beat him.

Roy Riegels, captain elect of University of California football team, shown making his famous 50 yard run to his own goal during freak contest with Georgia Tech at Pasadena. The score was 8 to 7 in favor of the Easterners.
